Abortion History Timeline

1959

The American Law Institute (ALI) proposes a model penal code for state abortion laws. The code advocates legalizing abortion for reasons including the mental or physical health of the mother, pregnancy due to rape and incest, and fetal deformity.

1967

Apr. 25: Colorado Gov. John A. Love signs the first "liberalized" ALI-model abortion law in the United States, allowing abortion in cases of permanent mental or physical disability of either the child or mother or in cases of rape or incest. Similar laws are passed in California, Oregon, and North Carolina.

The Virginia Society for Human Life is founded becoming the first statewide right-to-life organization in the country.

1968

As pro-abortion efforts continue and more state right-to-life organizations form, it becomes clear that there is a need for a national organization to coordinate the flow of information among the states. National Right to Life is formed in the summer of 1968 and publishes its first newsletter in October 1968. Over the next five years, the board of directors grows to include representatives with a diverse range of backgrounds including doctors, lawyers, nurses, homemakers, and educators.

1970

Apr. 11: New York allows abortion on demand up to the 24th week of pregnancy, as Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller signs a bill repealing the state's 1830 law that banned abortion after quickening except to save a woman's life. Similar laws are passed in Alaska, Hawaii, and Washington State.

June: National Right to Life brings together state right-to-life leaders for a national strategy meeting at Barat College in Chicago, Illinois.
