Lent — A Time for Families to Recalibrate

In the January 2015 publication of Guidepost, one article tells the story of how a six person family realized that their life had slowly lost its focus. They realized they were running the rat race with everyone else, and it wasn't bringing meaning to their lives. In a radical effort to "recalibrate," this family took a year off participating in any activity not directly related to school and church... including sports! They found so much more than they lost.

Maybe, this Lent, we too might need to get radical. Radical or not, Lent is a time to do something. Something that will lead us closer to God and make us less focused on ourselves.
